The abuse victim's claims are being treated as credible by detectives now investigating THREE murders allegedly linked to a network of VIP perverts.

A victim of the Westminster paedophile abuse scandal has claimed he saw a Conservative MP murder a young boy during a depraved sex party.

And the Sunday People can reveal that detectives are investigating THREE murders allegedly linked to a network of VIP perverts.

The horrifying account comes days after Scotland Yard confirmed they have launched a murder probe connected to allegations of sex abuse from the 1970s and 80s.

Today the Sunday People and Exaro investigations agency expose the full extent of shocking events the witness, known as Nick, has described to the Metropolitan Police paedophile unit.

Nick claims the first death was of a boy aged ten or 11 who was deliberately run down by a car.

Another chilling allegation is that he was in the same room in the 1980s when a 12-year-old boy was strangled by a Tory MP.

Nick said: "I watched while that happened. I am not sure how I got out of that. Whether I will ever know why I survived, I am not sure."

Eighteen months later, he claims a third boy was killed by two unknown men in front of another MP.

Nick told of his terror as he and the strangling victim were driven to an orgy.

Whistleblower: Nick has given detailed and lengthy evidence to detectives

He said: "We looked at each other and saw the fear in each other's eyes. We said nothing.

"I knew we were being taken somewhere to be sexually abused by powerful men.

"But I had no idea of the true horror of what was about to happen."

Nick had been picked up at an agreed meeting point. He recalled: "The car was chauffeur-driven although I can't remember the make.

“Cars were sent to take us to various locations to be abused. They were often luxury cars with a chauffeur.

“They would be dark in colour – Jaguars, Rolls-Royces, Daimlers or Range Rovers.”

He was driven to a location in central London. On the way the car stopped to pick up another lad.

Nick says the boy had brown hair and was aged around 12 but he never discovered his name.

Both lads sat in silence for fear of punishment.

They arrived at a luxury townhouse and were taken inside.

Nick, still traumatised by what he witnessed, has given a graphic and harrowing account to police about what took place.

Abusers' lair: Dolphin Square

In hours of video testimony, he described how he saw the Conservative MP – who was sitting in Parliament at the time – throttle the boy.

He said: “The MP was particularly nasty, even among the group of people who sexually abused me and others. I still find it difficult to talk about these incidents after all these years.”

A second witness has already corroborated some of the information related to the case, lending weight to Nick’s claims and strengthening his credibility in the eyes of the police.

Nick has also told detectives about the death of another boy during a depraved sexual assault in the presence of a Conservative minister – a different MP to the one involved in the first killing.

Nick believes the car killing was a warning to him.

He says someone in the paedophile network deliberately ran over and killed a boy in broad daylight on a London street. He is convinced the perverts were demonstrating their power and showing what could happen if he spoke out.

Nick said his abusive father supplied him to a group of MPs and other VIPs who held abuse parties at Dolphin Square – an apartment complex in Pimlico, near Parliament – and at other locations in London.

He says the minister repeatedly raped him and other boys aged between ten and 14.

A LIST of names seized by police probing allegations of child abuse includes ministers, members of the royal household and a world-famous pop star.

All were on record in relation to a suburban guest house that operated as a gay brothel.

Now some could be suspects in an investigation into a network of powerful people who were sexed-up paedophiles for years.

Late last week police ramped up the inquiry – and arrests are believed to be imminent.

Nine officers raided the North London home of former child protection worker Mary Moss after she initially declined to co-operate with detectives.

Documents and a laptop were seized. Ms Moss later handed over a further 19 files she had hidden in a neighbour's shed.

The papers include a list of men who went to sex parties in the 80s at the Elm Guest House, Blenheim, South West London.

Among the names are two former Conservative Cabinet ministers and four other senior Tories. There is also a Labour MP, a government Irish republican and a leading member of the National Front.

Trafficked

Others on the handwritten note are two members of the royal household – one a former Buckingham Palace employee – and a former member of a multinational company and two pop stars.

One of those is a best-selling musician but like some others on the list he is not suspected of being involved in child abuse.

The list was taken at meetings in 1968 between the guest house's manager, Carol Kain, and child protection officials.

Other documents seized are believed to identify 10 boys who were allegedly trafficked to the guest house from local care homes. Police have asked Richmond Council for a full list of children in care at the time.

Officers will be examining copies of cash receipts and the Rich and powerful: The Elm House abuse scandal was also revealed in the People

Nick was around 11 when he first went there for a Christmas party.

He recalled: “We would be ordered not to speak to each other.

“Sometimes I would be driven there with other children. On other occasions I would be driven there alone and joined other children there.”

He described being led to a heavily curtained flat via several flights of stairs and a “dimly lit, musty” corridor.

And he added: “We were asked if we wanted a drink. It was always whisky. Both MPs were brutal. I was raped over a bath-tub while my head was beneath the water.”

He claimed one MP told him to thrash another lad and “sexually punished” him when he refused.

Last week we told how Nick, now in his 40s, had identified a shamed top diplomat and MI6 chief as one of his attackers.

He picked out a photo of Sir Peter Hayman – a former deputy director of the secret service.

Hayman, for many years a pillar of the establishment, caused a scandal when he was caught with paedophile literature.

Nick said Hayman, who died in 1992, was one of a group of men who raped him as a child.

He is satisfied police are taking his claims “extremely seriously”.

A statement by Scotland Yard said: “Our inquiries have revealed further information regarding possible homicide.

“Based on our current knowledge, this is the first time this information has been passed to the Met.”

Police are convinced witness is credible

Investigator Mark Conrad says: “Nick’s account of his decade-long abuse – the trafficking, sexual and physical assaults and murders – and revelations about the status of the men defied belief.

“Unlike many abuse survivors, Nick has gone on to have a successful life. He is intelligent, articulate and strong-minded.

“His accounts are uncomfortably detailed and consistent.

“In July, Exaro together with the Sunday People published a report on alleged abuse at Dolphin Square.

“Nick agreed to meet detectives, but he insisted that I attend. Like Exaro, the police regard Nick as credible.

“The Met duly launched Operation Midland, and an investigation into possible homicide.”
